the condition of the flying field is such that it probably would not be the part of wisdom to attempt to take off with sufficient gasoline

Early Take-Off. NR-16020 left Miami municipal airport at 5:36 a. m., Atlanta time today. For 13 minutes we climbed slowly, swing course toward Puerto Rico. Beau-tiful in the early morning light was the curving line made when the blue waters of the Gulf stream met the aquamarine of the shoal waters off Miami's coast. Now and then I thought we glimpsed the outlines of shadowy fish, dark against the pale sands of the beach. Legend has it that sailfish are found thereabouts. I say leg-ends because I tried unsuccessfully one day last week to capture one. To me their existence is thus far merely hearsay.

Shortly after 6 o'clock two ships were visible. It was then beneath us, when everything in the cockpit was properly set and working smoothly. I tuned in Miami's radio station WQAM which was broadcasting every hour a summary of weather conditions which lay before us, as prepared by Pan-America's efficient meteorologists. My own schedule call-ed for a broadcast every 30 minutes and quarter past and at quarter to the hour.

was delayed a little with my first broadcast because just then the radio stations were sending out a transcription of my own

Complete Text of President Roosevelt's Message Asking Congress To Pass Measures To Prevent Methods Used To Dodge Federal Taxes AT LIQUOR INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP) Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message to congress today on tax evasion:

A condition has been developing during the past few months so serious to the nation that the congress and the people are entitled to information about it.

The secretary of the treasury has given me a report of a preliminary study of income tax returns for the calendar year 1936. This report reveals efforts at avoidance and evasion of tax liability, so widespread and so amazing both in their boldness and their ingenuity, that further action without delay seems imperative.

We face a challenge to the power of the government to col-lect, uniformly, fairly and without discrimination, taxes based on statutes adopted by the con-

Mr. Justice Holmes said "taxes are what we pay for civilized so-ciety." Too many individuals however, want the civilization at a discount.

Methods of escape or intended escape from tax liability are many. Some are instances of avoidance which appear to have the color of legality; others are on the borderline of legality; others are plainly contrary even to the letter of the law.

Alike in All Respects.

'All are alike in that they are definitely contrary to the spirit of the law. All are alike in that they represent a determined effort on the part of those who use them to dodge the payment of taxes which congress based on ability to pay. All are alike in that failure to pay results in shifting the tax load to the shoulders of others less able to pay, and in mulcting the Treasury of the government's just due I commend to your attention the following letter from the secretary of the treasury:

"The Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, May 29, 1937. "My Dear Mr. President:

"As you know, the Treasury was surprised and disturbed by the failure of the receipts from the income tax on March 15 to measure up to the budget estimate." mates. Therefore, we undertook an immediate investigation. Only a preliminary report can be made at this time, because the comete investigation covering the income tax returns filed will require the balance of this year. Furthermore, since many of the returns of large manufacturing corporations have not yet been filed, the present report is confined almost wholly to data dis-closed by the individual tax re-

Serious Conditions Disclosed. "But even this preliminary report discloses conditions so serious that immediate action is called for. More than the usual examination and audit by the Treasury is needed. It seems clear that if tax evasion and tax avoidance can be promptly stop-ped through legislation and reg-ulations resulting from a special investigation a very large portion of the deficiency in revenues will be restored to the Treasury. be restored to the Treasury.

"I herewith enumerate some of the principal devices now being employed by taxpayers with large incomes for the purpose of defeating the income taxes which would normally be payable by them. As we continue our pre-liminary expensions of the payable by the payable payable payable by the payable by the payable by the payable liminary examination, other de-vices are being disclosed.

"1. The device of evading taxes by setting up foreign personal holding corporations in the Bahamas, Panama, Newfoundland and other places where taxes are low and corporation laws lax.

such companies in the Bahamas alone in 1935 and 1936, and 22 more were organized by Americans in the Bahamas during the past two months. Panama and Newfoundland seem to be even more fertiile territory since their corporation laws make it more difficult to ascertain who the actual stockholders are. Moreover the stockholders have resorted to all manner of devices to prevent the acquisition of information regarding their companies. The companies are frequently organized through foreign lawyers, with dummy incorporators and dummy directors, so that the names of the real parties in interest do not appear.

Dodging the Collector "One American citizen with a $3,000,000 Bahamas corporation has apparently attempted to prevent the Bureau of Internal Revenue from catching up with him by filing his individual tax returns in successive years from towns in New Brunswick, British Columbia, and Jamaica. "Another individual believes that he has been so successful in removing his assets from the United States to the Bahamas that he is defying the treasury to collect a tax upon a $250,000 fee he has received; and by way of insult showed a large net loss his personal return for 1936. In considerable part, the loss was due to the large deduction he claims for interest on a loan made to him by his personal holding company. But the man in question is no object of charity, for his personal holding company, organized in Canada, had an income of over $1,500,000 from American dividends in 1936, though it has not yet filed a return.

"Perhaps the most flagrant case of this character is that of a retired American army officer with a large income from valuable American securities which he desires to sell at a very large profit. To escape our income and inheritance tax laws, he used the device of becoming a naturalized Canadian citizen, and six days later organized four Bahamas corporations to hold his securities. and his lawyers apparently think that he can now sell his securities free from any taxes on his profits, since there are no income taxes in the Bahamas, and that he has adroitly escaped American the scheme purported to pay a large single premium for their policies, but immediately borrowed back practically the entire sum. Under the plan the so-called policyholders sought to obtain a large deduction for interest on this loan, although the fact was that no interest was really paid. By this means five prom-inent Americans sought to evade nearly $550,000 in income taxes in the years 1932 to 1936. This fraud was discovered by the reasury's investigators and all of the taxpayers have now submitted offers to pay the full amount of taxes evaded, plus intrest. Un-til our investigation is completed we do not know how many similar companies may have been organized in other countries, and utilized by our citizens; nor do

"3. The device of domestic personal holding companies. "The rates of tax applicable to personal holding companies were reduced in 1936 at the time of uted profits tax. It was believed at that time that the combined rates of the two taxes would be sufficient to insure the distribution of the entire incomes of these companies, and the consequent imposition of surtaxes upon their owners. This expectation has not been realized.

we yet know whether this newly invented type of fraud has other

Dodges $322,000 Tax.

"Thus, the single stockholder of one large personal holding company saved himself $322,000 by causing his company to dis-tribute none of its income to him. "In another case, a man and his wife saved $791,000 through the use of personal holding companies in 1936.

'In a third case, the personal holding company reported over $500,000 of net income, but the total taxes paid by the two stockholders, husband and wife, were less than $60,000, due principally to credits for payments of in-debtedness the holding company prudently incurred in accumulat ing properties for its owners. If the personal holding company had not been in existence, the stockholders would have paid over $200,000 additional income taxes.

"Another favorite device is to organize a considerable number of personal holding companies, not only for the sake of reducing the tax, but of increasing the Treasury's difficulties in auditing transactions between compa-nies. At last accounts one man had caused to be set up some 96 companies scattered all over the country. The other individuals were utilizing 23 personal holding companies.

"4. The device of incorporating yachts and country estates.
"Many wealthy taxpayers today are dodging the express pro-visions of the law denying deductions for personal expenses by incorporating their yachts or their country estates, turning over to the yacht or to the estate securities vielding an income just sufficient to pay the entire expenses of operation. Hundreds of thoussands of dollars in income taxes are annually avoided in this way.

Private Yacht Company. "Thus, one man's yacht is own-ed by his personal holding company, along with three million dollars in securities. He rents the yacht from his company for a sum far less than the cost of upkeep, and the company uses its income from the securities to pay the wages of the captain and crew, the expenses of operating the yacht, and an annual depreitems would be deductible if this individual owned the yacht per sonally.

"A great many wealthy taxpayers are utilizing a similar arrangement for the operation of their country places and town

"One man has placed his fivemillion-dollar city residence in such a corporation; another his racing stable whose losses last year were nearly $200,000. The tax savings he thus sought to obtain through the use of the holding company were $140,000.
"One wealthy woman has improved on the general plan of evasion by causing her personal holding company, which owns her country place, to employ her husabnd at a salary to manage it. She can thereby supply him with pocket money, and in effect claim a tax deduction for the expense of maintaining him.

"5. The device of artificial de ductions for interest, losses, etc. 'Taxpayers are seeking greatly to reduce their personal in-come taxes by claming deductions for interest on loans to them by their personal holding companies, or on loans to them by their family trusts. These transactions normally have no business purpose, but are merely an artificial means of shifting income from one member of the family subother member of the family subject to lower rates.

Deducts Loan to Husband. 'Thus, one woman claims a large annual deduction for interest on a loan made to her by her husband as trustee of a which she created for their children. The mother thereby seeks to secure a deduction for her contribution to the children's support, and since the trust is revocable by her husband, the par ents still have the desired control the property and its income "In the same category are losses deducted by taxpayers who claim that their racing stables or hobby farms were operated for profit, even though a profit is never realized. Thus, a promi-nent manufacturer seeks a deduction of over $125,000 against his income from his business, on ac-count of his losses in operating a chicken farm.

"6. The device of the creation of multiple trusts for relatives and dependents.

"Splitting income two ways, between husband and wife, reduces income taxes and leaves the family income intact. Splitting the family income many ways by means of many trusts, all for the much greater saving, while leav ing the money actually in the same hands. For the creator of the trust often constitutes himself or his wife as trustee, and thus retains full control over the investment and disposition of fund itself and of its income.

"One thrifty taxpayer has formed 64 trusts for the benefit of four members of his immediate family, and thereby claims to have saved them over $485,000 in one year in taxes.

Form 40 Trusts for Relatives. "Another thrifty pair have constituted 40 trusts for their relatives, and a prominent lawyer and his wife utilize 16 trusts for the same purpose. The first pair maintain numbered brokerage accounts, and only at the end of the year are the beneficial owners identified. In this way innumberable transactions are carried on, often between accounts. which do not actually affect the beneficial interests of their owners, but which are designed solely to reduce tax liability.
"7. The device of husband and wife or father and children part-nerships. "The purpose of these partnerships, like the multiple trusts, is to split the family income artifi-cially into two parts; or, if the children are taken in, into still smaller fractions.

"There are many instances of this kind; but to illustrate the point it is sufficient to cite the case of a New York brokerage firm which late in 1935 admitted into partnership the four minor children, two boys and two girls, of one of the partners. The tax saving he sought thereby in 1936 amount to over $50,000.
"8. The device of pension

"For 10 years the revenue acts have sought to encourage pen-sion trusts for aged employes by providing corporations with a special deduction on account of contributions thereto, and exempting the trust itself from tax. Recently this exemption has been twisted into a means of tax avoidance by the creation of nsion trusts which include as pension trusts which include as beneficiaries only small groups of officers and directors who are in the high income brackets. In this fashion high-salaried officers seek to provide themselves with generous retiring allowances, while at the same time the corporation claims a deduction therefor, in the hope that the fund may accumulate income

Pension for Chief Owners.

"Thus, in one case $43,000 is annually appropriated by the corporation to a pension trust for the benefit of its two chief owners. One of the co-owners will retire at the age of 65 with a monthly pension of $1,725, and the other will retire at 60 with a monthly pension of $1,425.
"These eight types of tax avoidance are sufficent to show that there is a well-defined pur-pose and practice on the part of some taxpayers to defeat the intent of congress to tax incomes in accordance with ability to pay. In some cases, the Bureau of Internal Revenue under existing law can establish a liability or indeed proceed on the ground of fraud; but many of these cases fall in the category of a legal, though highly immoral, avoidance of the intent of the law. It seems, therefore, that legislation should be passed at this session of the congress in order to elimproved; and that as a result of the further investigation this summer and autumn the next session of the congress should finally close any further loopholes which may be discovered. "In addition to these cases of moral fraud, there are three other major instances in which the law itself permits individuals and corporations to avoid their equitable share of the tax bur-

"1. Percentage depletion. Glaring Loopholes. "This is perhaps the most glaring loophole in our present revenue law. Since 1928 large oil and mining corporations have been entitled to deduct from 5 to 27 1-2 per cent of their gross income as an allowance for the depletion of their mines or wells, and the deduction may be taken even though the cost of the property has been completely recovered. Thus, in 1936, one mining company deducted nearly $3,000,000 under this provision, although it had already completely recovered the cost of its property. The amount of the deduction was a sheer gift from the United States to this taxpayer and its stockholders, and the revenue that we lost thereby was $818,000. Similar annual losses of revenue in the cases of a few other typical companies are $584,000, $557,000, $5 1 2,000, $272,000, $267,000, $202,000 and $152,000. The estimated annual loss of revenue due to this source DENOUNCED IN MOSCOW alone is about $75,000,000. I recommended in 1933 that this pro-vision be eliminated but nothing was done at that time; and it has since remained unchanged.

"2. The division of income be-tween husband and wife in the eight community property states. Major Case of Loss.

"This is another major cause of revenue loss, which is unjustifiable because obtained at the expense of taxpayers in the 40 states which do not have community property laws. A New York resident with a salary of $100,000 pays about $32,525 federal income tax; a Californian with the same salary may cause one-half to be reported by his wife and the federal income taxes payable by the two will be only $18,626. The total loss of revenue due to this unjustifiable discrimination against the residents of 40 states runs into the millions.
"3. Taxation of nonresident aliens.

"The 1936 act eliminated the requirement that a nonresident alien, (without United States of-

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat Wyoming, pointed out most of the evasions involved establishment of corporations. His bill to require corporations to obtain federal charters was the answer, he said. Robinson warmly indorsed that measure, asserting "we can not only require them to take out a federal license, but we can attach conditions which will be a real assurance that the creatures of the government will not defy the government."

· CONGRESS SPIKES ROOSEVELT'S VETO VET INSURANCE

F. D. R. Suffers 368 to 13 Defeat in House, 69 to 12 in Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 1 .-- (AP)-Congress overrode President evelt's veto today to give 23,000 World War veterans the privilege of extending their temporary government insurance policies for five more years.

It was the first time a presidential veto has been overridden since the veterans' bonus payment was approved more than a year ago.

Acting swiftly because of the xpiration today of many of the policies, both houses mustered far nore than the required two-thirds majority. There was little debate.

The house passed the measure, 368 to 13, the senate, 69 to 12.

The temporary policies were issued to veterans after the war to give him life insurance coverage for five years at a lower rate than would be required for permanent insurance, such as ordinary life or protection.

Senator George; Democrat,
Georgia, sponsor of the bill, asked the senate to override the veto.
He said many of the policy-holders were seriously disabled and would be aither forced to drop their insurance altogether or greattheir insurance altogether or great-ly reduce its amount when they converted it to other types of veterans' policies.

In answer to the President's assertion that the renewal of the five-year term policies would constitute an additional cost to holders of other veterans policies, George said all veterans' organiza-tions had endorsed the bill.

VOTES WITH ROOSEVELT WASHINGTON, June 1—With a one exception, the Georgia delegaione exception, the Georgia delegation in congress today joined in the vote to override President Roosevelt's veto of a bill to extend the time in which World War veterans may renew their term insurance policies.

Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla, was the only Georgian voting to sustain the veto.

At about noon the navigator told me we were too far north and I changed my course slightly as dinothing to see but indistinguishable sea and sky. And then suddenly through a haze we sighted the beautiful shoreline of Puerto Rico. That was 12:40 p. m. (Atlanta time). I came in directly, following the long shore to the field, close to the side of this colorful city. The airport, by the way, is not overly large for ships such as mine and is partly under construction. It is for that reason that I will have to slightly decrease my planned load for tomorrow morning's take-off. It was odd to see a four-masted schooner anchored off the runway. She had come filled with cod from Nova Scotia and will return with salt from Turks island. Friendly Reception.

The reception, as so often with tinerant fliers, was supremely friendly. I was greatly impressed with the courtesy and helpfulness of the local officials. Acting Gov-ernor Menendez Ramos generously offered hospitality but I had made arrangements to impose myself upon a fellow pilot who is accustomed to such strange habits flying is getting pretty sissy. The ease and friendliness of it all is further accentuated by the marvelous help given by the radio. Clara Livingston, who is one of the few private fliers on the island. Before leaving town we lunched with Mrs. Thomas Rodenbaugh, wife of the Pan-American airport manager here. Flying seems to make even more trouble for the innocent bystander than it does for the participants. I fear that the roar of my motors so early this morning might have awakened some of the good citi-zens of Miami. Certainly, to all of those who came out to the field to see me off I owe an apology for so thoroughly ruining their night's rest. The people of Miami have been so kind to me that I would be ungrateful were I to be responsible for causing any of them nconvenience. I'm glad to record that my Lock-heed Electra is behaving in all ways as she should. The Wasp engines are functioning perfectly, as is my Sperry gyro-pilot and my radio equipment, and now we look forward to our first glimpse of South America tomorrow, if all

NEW YORK, June 1.—(P)— Nineteen thousand wads of chewing gum, some of them a quarter of a century old, were removed today from the east side of Broadway between 42 and 45th streets by the gum-re-moval squad of the Clean Side-walk Association.

The attack on the gum was led by Jean Le Bloas Marlaine, president of the association, and president of the association, and lasted from 5 until 8 o'clock. A chemical solvent, scrapers, water from a hose, and brooms were used.

Marlaine personally estimated the age of the ancient gum, chewed and discarded when Anna Held was still the toast of Bradway.

He recommends wrapping used gum in paper and depositing it in a refuse receptacle.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 2, 1937.

THE CLASSIFICATION AMENDMENT None of the 26 amendments to be voted upon in the election next week is of more vital importance to the future welfare of the state government than the one authorizing the general assembly to classify property for taxing purposes.

Such a change in the state system of taxation will manifestly be to the advantage of every taxpayer in the state.

Reduced to the simplest terms, the question is whether Georgia shall continue to tax all forms of property, real and personal, tangible and intangible, at the same rate, or permit the general assembly to define a number of classes of property and apply to each class such a rate as would at once be fair and productive of revenue to the state.

Much of the opposition to such a course in the past has come from farmers, who have mistakenly felt that the tax rates under classification woud remain high for real property while a low rate would be applied to such property as stocks and bonds. This, it has been contended, would be unfair to the farming in-

The fact is that under the present system intangible forms of property do not actually pay any taxes worth mentioning, the reason being that the rates under our uniform system are so high as to lead the owners of intangibles to register them in other states or to conceal them from the tax collector. Naturally, stocks, bonds, mortgages and money are easily

It was pointed out in 1929 by Professor Lutz, of Princeton, who made a study of the Georgia tax problem, that whereas intangibles were at that time believed to be about equal in value to the other forms of property, they were returned at 1.3 per cent of value, making up only $46,000,000 of the total of more than a billion of assessed values for that year. It is clear, therefore, that intangibles could have paid only a very small part of the taxes collected.

Unquestionably, a low rate upon property easily concealed will induce the owners to declare it for taxation. The constitutional amendment would relieve owners of fear that once the property was confessed, a higher rate might be imposed.

Georgia has a striking example in Virginia's experience. A very low rate yielded the state more than $5,000,000 in revenue in 1928. This was much more than the total revenue received by the state of Georgia from all varieties of property, including real estate. Although depression has brought about a decline of revenue from intangibles, the present yield being about $3,000,000, Virginia still receives many times as much revenue from a low rate as we do in Georgia from a high rate.

It will be clearly to the advantage of every class of taxpayers for the classification amendment to be adopted.

THE JUVENILE DETENTION HOME

The official opening of Fulton county's new juvenile detention home is to take place this week Citizens are invited to inspect the fine new building on Central avenue, at the rear of the courthouse, during the announced "open house" hours on Saturday.

For many years Fulton county has enjoyed the services of a juvenile court judge, Garland M. Watkins, whose ability as an advisor and friend of young people has gained him national reputation.

The county has lacked a place of detention for the wards of the juvenile court fit for such use. Now, with the new $140,000 home complete, the ability of the judge may find reflection in the circumstances under which his wards are confined.

That it is ever necessary to keep boys and girls behind steel bars is one of society's worst tragedies. Youth and freedom should be synonymous and locked doors and barred windows should be undreamed in the experiences

Yet, under life as it is lived today, with humanity, even juvenile humanity, so imperfect, it is inevitable that society must provide means of restraint for some of her children. Some must be kept where they cannot harm others and some must be protected from the moral and physical dangers of the streets. To some the bars are a prison, to some a protection.

The old detention home was a disgrace to the community. Archaic, dilapidated, insanitary, detention in it was probably a greater crime against the child than any he could commit against society.

The new home, modern, clean, light and comfortable, includes every tested idea for the regeneration of youngsters whose feet have started down the handicaped paths of life. The cost of the home will be repaid quickly in new happiness for unfortunate little ones and in rescued from despair to become good citisens of the future.

The Boston press denounces rioting students at Cambridge for trampling on the rights of citizens. There is dark talk of revising the song, to read "Unfair Harvard."

If the initials H. R. H. are important, our thought is that, when dropping the name Bessie, Wally might have substituted Henrietta Rosalind Hortense.

THE RECOVERY CHORUS SWELLS

The Federal Reserve Bank in its review of business and industry in the sixth district for April, reveals that department stores in the district set a new high record in total sales for any April since 1927. The April figures on Atlanta sales were almost double the monthly average for 1923-25.

Atlanta bank clearings for May reached the highest monthly total in the past seven years. Each month for 1937 has shown a substantial increase over the clearings for the corresponding month one year ago. The Georgia Motor Vehicle Department reports registration of automobiles at the highest point in the state's history. License tag sales for the first five months of this year are only 12,000 short of the number sold altogether Thus the march of new prosperity continues. Testimony piles upon irrefutable testimony that, through all the ranks of society in Georgia, better times are bringing increased spending power and fuller living. Without a general advance in incomes among all the people, department stores could never hope to show substantial gains in total sales. Atlantans and Georgians may wish to buy of wares displayed but, unless they have the money, they cannot realize that wish. The record of sales reveals they are today, as a whole, financially able to gratify their desires.

Growing bank clearings provide probably the surest index to the swelling volume of business. Modern business inscribes the record of its activity on its checks and the strength of commercial affairs may be accurately gauged by plumbing the flow of credits and debits through the banks.

In days of prosperity modern man is quick to realize the increased human efficiency and the greater enjoyment of life that comes with possession of an automobile. Tag sales show many more cars are owned in Georgia today than ever before. They cannot be purchased on faith alone. The fact they are here is compelling testimony that Georgians are better off. The days of the Hoovercart have long since faded into history.

The wheels of industry in Georgia are spinning. The marts of retail trade are active and the windows of the bank tellers witness ever lengthening queues of depositors. From every section of the state the song of new success rises in swelling volume from a prosperous and happy people.

HARRY P. HERMANCE

Harry P. Hermance wrote his name deep in the educational, cultural and business record of Atlanta. His death in Miami takes from earthly contact a warm and admired friend of hundreds of Atlantans.

Though not a native of this section, Mr. Hermance was, in many respects, an outstanding example of Atlanta's best citizenry. Presentday Atlanta owes much to her adopted sons and daughters and it is largely to their civic interest and constructive participation in worth-while undertakings that the advance of the community must be attributed.

Mr. Hermance came here as the executive for a large commercial firm. He immediately identified himself with the city's life and was accepted as an important addition to the personality assets of Atlanta.

THE QUESTION WASHINGTON, June 1.—A wise official high up in the new order picked up his daily paper which told of the German-Communist war in Spain (19 dead that day) and the CIO-steel war in Chicago (four dead, 88 injured the same day).

"Behind those two developments," he said, "lies the same trouble, and the whole trouble with the world. No leadership anywhere is stressing forbearance, respect for order or law, or respect for the rights of others. This seems to be the day of dog eat dog.

"The Reds bomb a German battleship and kill 26. The Germans bomb a Red town and kill 30. A steel mill disregards the rights of workers to organize. The workers disregard the property rights of the steel mill, trespass and start a fight.

"Leadership which makes these things is strictly war leadership.

"Leadership which makes these things is strictly war leadership.

And, incidentally, the two organizers who incided the steel strikers before their march were not listed among the dead or wounded.

Hitler and Stalin were far away when the Spanish shooting started.

"Are leaders going to hurl their forces of hate at each other until they acquire some common sense from sheer exhaustion of war, or are there men big enough in the world to make forbearance and respect fashionable again? This kind of thought has taken hold rapidly in high places here since the first sit-down strike. PARING The longer house farm leaders look at the new farm program, the less they like it. Their unannounced idea now is to break the pending bill up into several bills, as they are doing with the President's government reorganization program. They will then pass whatever portions they desire and forget the

In this case, it means they will probably pass the ever-normal granary experiment for wheat and let production control, com-modity loans, etc., go over until next session. They do not believe Mr. Roosevelt would object to this, as the present system seems to

At least the President has informed them time and again that he does not want any extra-budgetary legislation passed this session, and the omnibus farm scheme would bulge the budget far

BACKGROUND The cables have not reported it, but the hostess of the Duke and Mrs. Warfield at that Monts chateau is the former Fern Lombard, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Senator Vandenburg recalls that her husband, Charles Bedoux, arrived in the Michigan furniture capital about a quarter of a century ago and was employed as an efficiency engineer in the furniture busi-ness. There Mr. Bedoux married Miss Lombard and took her back to France. The bride's father, the late Charles Lombard, was nationally known as exalted ruler of the Elks. He died several years

The senator also recalls that Miss Lombard was the most beautiful Grand Rapids brunette of her day.

STRATEGY Congressional leaders were surprised when the President failed to handle the farm bill and the wage and hour bill together in the same message or the same bill.

What caused him to change his mind was that the farm bill was overloaded with tariff and other suggestions which he did not care to espouse officially, if at all.

Nevertheless, the strategy of keeping the two bills linked together in the public eye is being followed out.

President O'Neal, of the Farm Bureau Federation, is telling congressmen that the new order cannot provide hours and wages labor without doing something for the farmer this session.

However, no one is talking about doing anything for the great bulk of middle class people of the country who are neither farmers union laborers, but who pay for the products of both.

COERCION Farm legislators are still grumbling against the supreme court decision upholding the social security act. The reason: In outlawing the AAA, the court said it was coercion for the government to give one farmer benefit payments and not also give to his neighbor who failed to join the AAA. In the unemployment tax case, the court held it was not coercion the government to allow states a 90 per cent rebate on federal unemployment insurance taxes if a state accepts the law.

Agriculture Committee Chairman Jones is saying: "The supreme court, in the social security decision, passed the AAA at 45

SIDELINE Enterprising legislators have found a quiet little side-line which is netting some of them $5,000 to $6,000 a year in addition to their salaries. They have joined private speak-ers bureaus in New York which offer them to clubs and organizations as dinner speakers for fees which average around $300 per speech. This is far more productive than making speeches in congress, and no one can find out how much money is being made thereby. Income tax returns are secret. If a constituent becomes inquisitive, he is generally informed that the speech netted only

Economic Outlook Good.

On the whole then almost everybody seems agreed that a considerable improvement has come about in the general economic situation in the course of the present administration, although there remains many a bad spot to clear up. People realize that we have passed through a very critical period, but not all are con-vinced that we are definitely out of the woods. In fact, several eminent observers believe that we are now in the midst of a pause that we are enjoying a breathing spell, as it were, and that this is but the beginning of a reconstruction period which will extend over several decades. I incline to that

There can be no definite and permanent stability, in fact, so long as the European situation remains as tense and as fraught with danger as it is at present. The expansionistic urge, due to satiaon of the home markets, is growing stronger day by day in countries like Germany, Japan and Italy, to name but the chief amongst the so-called "have-nots." Conflicts become inevitable in these circumstances unless, in a of generosity, the states which have a surplus of territory and raw materials should decide to share up their possessions with he down-and-outs.

I am afraid that this is a little too much to expect. And, even so, if that should come about, how long will those expansionists re-main satisfied? ## World's Window It Matters Little to the Victim By What Method His Pocket Is Picked

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Before ethical rules were invented, a man who obtained the property of another by stealth, force or trickery considered himself superior to his victim and was so regarded by his envious fellows.

When men agreed upon a set of rules, to make life simpler and more secure, the best of them considered observance of the rules a matter of morality and honor. Each of them understood that he would have a great advantage if he broke the rules while others obeyed them, but pride in his own decency made him play the game fairly. And since he obeyed the rules himself, he despised the man who did not. obeyed them, but pride in his own decency made him play the game fairly. Yet there were men, then as now, who had no sense of honor and no regard for ethics, and these not only broke the rules but felt superior to the people they robbed.

The sharper today gets the better of honest men because they assume that he obeys the rules as they do. And when he has gained something by fraud or trickery or plain lying, he says to himself: "I am smarter than those boobs, for I trick them with ease."

It would be as sensible to feel superior after winning a golf game by breaking the accepted rules, yet the cheat's belief in his superiority is universal.

In Europe, except in the largest and best-known stores, it is common practice to charge what the customer seems capable of paying. The price quoted to an American is double the usual price, and if he pays it without argument, as he usually does, the shop-keeper considers himself a superior person who has outwitted a price everybody must pay.

The European penalizes the man who trusts him, as every sharper does. When he says the price is $10, though he commonly takes half of that, he deliberately attempts to deceive. And when he charges you $10, because you trust him, and later sells the same article to a haggler for half of that sum, you are as certainly robbed of $5 as though he had picked your pocket.

VOTE ON THE MERITS,

BOWDON EDITOR SAYS (From the Bowdon Bulletin.)
It is a mistake to appeal to the voters of Georgia to vote for or against proposed constitutional endments of a general character as Democrats or to oppose them on other political grounds. There should be no politics in them. Each voter should, as a citizen of Geor-gia, interested in her welfare, study these amendments and vote for or against them because of their merit or lack of merit. When the welfare of the people of Geor-gia is the issue, all should be Georgians and stand for Georgia.

SUBSTANTIAL VICTORY PREDICTED FOR PROGRAM

(From the Dade County Times.)
In the opinion of The Times, the constitutional amendments pencing which directly affect the Rivers administration will win by a substantial majority in the election to be held June 8.

These six measures were put before the people of Georgia in the gubernatorial campaign last year and were indorsed by the voters overwhelmingly. The state Demo-cratic convention held at Macon indorsed them and they were passed by both houses of the legislature by large majorities.

For the program of the present administration to be carried out, it is imperative that these six particular amendments be ratified by the people. In the eyes of many prominent leaders, the amend-ments constitute the most progres-sive program proposed in Georgia in a third of a century.

UN JUNE 8TH, the voters of Georgia will decide whether or not the Whiskey situation in Georgia will be left in its present deplorable, uncontrolled condition - or whether whiskey will be controlled and taxed to help pay the cost of this new program.

If Georgia's new Program is approved, and the Bill for the Control and Taxation of Alcoholic Beverages is not, approved - then the taxpayers of Georgia are going to be left holding the bag! BECAUSE - the State is counting on $3,500,000.00 tax revenue annually from whiskey, to help pay for this program. If they don't get this $3,500,000.00 from whiskey, they're going to have to raise other taxes to make up the deficit.

Isn't $3,500,000.00 a year a high price to pay for the ILLUSION of Dryness? Do YOU think that Georgia is REALLY dry? Do you sincerely believe that it isn't possible to secure whiskey practically anywhere in the State, any hour of the day or night? Is anybody really fooled, except the State Treasury, which is not permitted to levy taxes on Whiskey because it is not OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED?

Times and conditions change. Statewide prohibition may have been successful in Georgia 25 years ago, but it has definitely demonstrated in recent years that it is an UTTER FAILURE in controlling or checking the sale of Whiskey. Isn't it time we gave the method of State Control—a method successfully adopted by over 40 other States—a chance? It will certainly be an improvement over the existing travesty, and will enable the State to control and levy taxes on Whiskey.

Stop Whiskey from riding "tax free"! Make it pay its share of Georgia's Taxes! Go to the polls on June 8th and vote FOR LEGALIZATION and CONTROL of Alcoholic Beverages.

The Fulton grand jury heard word pictures of the crime from officers and neighborhood witnesses in an hour and a half deliberation yesterday and then re-turned a true bill with the unofficial request that the negro be given a speedy trial.

Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens placed the case on the court calendar for June 15, two weeks from yesterday, after a conference with Judge John D. Humphries, senior justice of the Atlanta judicial circuit, before whom the trial will be conducted. Evidence Available.

Evidence Available.

Evidence such as a hammer and wood chisel, dipped in paint allegedly to cover bloodstains; two letters written by Jackson from Fulton tower in which he admitted to his wife and mother he was a murderer of his former employer's wife; the negro's blood-stained clothing and the dead woman's lipstick were available for the jurors' inspection,

County Policemen Jack Carroll

George Newton, son-in-law of the dead woman, last night explained a note found in the Fluker garage—"I have brought Jack back"—which had puzzled police. The note was left by L. R. Scott, an acquaintance who had borrowed the family automobile jack and finding no one at home when he returned it, wrote the note to leave with the jack, Newton said.

America. Study of the sea bottom has led to the belief that such was the case vast ages ago. Geologists have estimated, however that the islands have been cut off from the mainland for 30,000,000 or 35,000,000 years. If this is true, it helps explain why they contain certain forms of animal life found nowhere else on the globe.

Hundreds of craters exist on the Galapagos Islands. No important eruption has taken place in the recent past, but the great lava fields point to big explosions during times of long ago. In the past century, several small eruptions have been observed, but they have been hardly more than the outpouring of smoke and steam.

Many places on the Galapagos islands are from 1,000 to 3,000 feet above sea level. The highest peak, or crater top, rises to a height of almost a mile.

"Thus, one American woman who married an Englishman had an income from this country in 1935 of nearly $300,000. Her tax for 1936 will, therefore, be approximately $30,000 as against over $160,000 under the prior law.

Effect of 1936 Law. "Another American woman who married a Frenchman has an income of over $150,000 from American trusts, on which she paid a tax of about $55,000 in 1935. Her tax is reduced to about $15,000 by the 1936 law. Though the tightening of the withholding provisions in 1936 will tend to insure more revenue from nonresident aliens in the lower income brackets, the present taxing provisions are not satisfactory as applied to nonresident aliens with incomes in the higher brack-

"The problem of tax avoidance is not new. The congress devoted particular attention to it in 1933 and 1934, and by legislation effectively put a stop to many evasive devices discovered then as having been in use. The practice outlined above can and should be stopped in the same

"In conclusion, I have two observations to make from the evidence before me. In the first place, the instances I have given above are disclosed by a quick check of comparatively few in-dividual returns As I have said before, most of the large poration returns have not yet en filed. The general audit of 1936 returns is just beginning. Nevertheless, it is likely that the cases I have digested above are symptomatic of a large number of others, which will be disclosed by the usual careful audit.

Most Returns Honest. "In the second place, the ordi-nary salaried man and the small merchant do not resort to these or similar devices. The great bulk f our 5,500,000 returns are honestly made. Legalized avoidance or evasion by the so-called leaders of the business community is not only demoralizing to the revenues: it is demoralizing to those who practice it as well. It throws an additional burden of taxation upon the other members of the community who are less able to bear it, and who are already cheerfully bearing their fair share. The success of our revenue system depends equally upon fair administration by the Treasury, and upon completely honest returns by the taxpayer.

They were entirely unaware that when the dessert course was served they would be presented with a large wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and accompanied by strains of the wedding march played by Graham Jackson in his inimitable style.

Although supper was served on the terrace, the Broeman home was frown en suite for the occasion and the guests wandered throughout the rooms, which were beautifully decorated with quantities of bright-colored garden flowers. FRIENDLY COUNSEL By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: A year ago I didn't believe in love. Teday I believe in love but don't believe in women. That's why I am writing to take exception to your saying a boy was selfish when he went off to college and asked his best girl not to date any other boy until he came e. It isn't because he's selfish but because he must forever remain in doubt as to what hap-pened on those dates. He is thinking of the girl's future hap-piness as well as his own. I had piness as well as his own. I had this sort of a proposition .o deal with. My girl promised me that she wouldn't date anybody in my absence and then broke her promise. When I faced her with the fact she wept and swore she wouldn't repeat. What did she do? She repeated and still again, after having sworn on a Bible the second time. If this affair breaks up, be sure I will ask the next one not to date anybody in my absence and I can't see that it is selfish. I don't believe a woman can appreciate the feelings of a man in love. COLLEGE BOY.

Answer: My young friend, I'm afraid you are taking yourself too seriously and that's why your girl has taken you for a ride. All the good gals are faithful when they fall in love but you have to watch 'em when they are playing hideand-seek. Already you have seen and-seek. Already you have seen how they work; they promise what at the moment seems to be expedient, but hang on to all boy friends, beaux and prospects; weep when they are caught snatching a date on the sly, swear they will never do it again and the straightway make another date. they will never do it again and straightway make another date. No use for a boy to kid himself about tying a girl up with prom-ises. She won't keep them unless are made voluntarily.

It is quite possible that we women can't appreciate the feelwomen can't appreciate the reciings of a man in love but we can get a pretty good line on his character by watching him at work with the girls. We know that there's something radically wrong with him if he

If he asks his girl to give up her good times, take the veil and go into solitary confinement while he's away at college, we will wager money on his being con-ceited, arrogant, selfish and jeal-ous. What is he offering her in return for her great renunciation? An IOU on the ring and that's too uncertain for her to count it sufficient payment. The girls, see ing how many slips there are be-twixt college and church, learn early to cross their fingers when they make premature promises to forsake all others. So it comes to pass that even if they are foolish enough to promise, their promises aren't worth a pinch of snuff.

When you are older you will discover that faith in love won't faith in the object of your af-fection. You will discover, too, that when a good girl falls for promises, spy on her and police her to see that she keeps them. She will do what you want her to do for the sheer pleasure of

MY DAY By Eleanor Roosevelt

THE WHITE HOUSE, Monday.—We had a very nice home party out in the garden on Saturday evening. The Roosevelt Home Club from Dutchess County came down to spend the day in Washington and evidently had a most satisfactory time visiting all the points of interest. They had a buffet supper with us at 6:30, then saw a movie on the second floor and went back to their train.

I asked one little boy in the group if he wasn't sleepy, for they had come down in day coaches. He assured me that he had sleept at least an hour and was not in the least tired!

Mr. and Mrs. William Plog, who have for many years looked after my mother-in-law's place at Hyde Park, stayed on with us for a day or two. I have a feeling that Mr. Plog found the greenhouses much the most interesting of the many things he had seen.

Yesterday was the first day I felt summer had really begun and that we could relax and enjoy life, for all our big entertainments are over. We celebrated by having lunch and supper in the garden. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown and their two little sons were Afterwards they asked permission to feed the squirrels and from a distance, we saw them wandering around the grounds with bags of nuts. An hour or so later they returned to us and announced they had been stuck in the elevator. They looked as though they had cleaned the elevator shaft and what was once maculate white was sadly streaked with dirt.

All little boys should look like this, however, and I was glad to see their mother took it calmly. They went off to the Smith-sonian to see the dinosaurs and then came back to have a swim. When they left this morning, I thought sightseeing was over and they were going straight home, but I was told that, on the contrary, they were to stop in New York to see the aquarium at the Battery, the planetarium in the Museum of Natural History on the west side of Central Park, and Grant's Tomb on Riverside drive before they took the train for Albany. Youngsters today are certainly more inquisitive than they were in my day, and if they are all such keen sightseers the next generation will be well educated!

I am riding every morning now and today my official engagements are few. I greeted "Uncle Don" and his two young prizewinners and this afternoon I have only to receive two ladies and go over to Annapolis for the ring dance tonight at which I am to receive for the midshipmen and their guests.

"It's a boy. Weighs 62 Paul Richards went up to the plate and hit a home run to celebrate the advent of the young Galvin, son of his friend and associate catcher, Jim Galvin.

Jim Galvin promptly hur-ried back to the hospital to tell his son about the home run. "He looked right up at me, took hold of my hand and shook it," said Jim Galvin.

The big catcher had come home from Knoxville to be present when the youngster arrived. The arrival was shortly after 2 o'clock. And Jim Galvin was the happiest man in town. It's the only child of the Galvins.

From Canton, up there in the Nawth Georgia mountains, comes word from Pop Warner that the town's nine-hole golf course is now completed and is a severe test of golf.

That's the town that produced the Jones family and from there to Atlanta came R. P. Jones with his family. Which family included Robert Tyre Jones. You've heard of him. Pop Warner writes: Dear Mr. McGill:

I think that it may interest you to know that the town of Canton, the home of "The Golfing Joneses," i. e. Messrs. L. L., A. V., Tyre (the Long Knocker), Ben, R. T. EPSOM DOWNS, England, June 1.—(R)—Opposed by precedent and a score of the ranking three-year-olds of Great Britain and France, William Woodward's Perifox tomorrow goes after the 158th Derby, England's most famous flat race won only once by an Ameri-can-bred horse.

Not since the Derby victory of Pierre Lorillard's Iroquois caused business to be suspended on Wall Street in 1881 has an Americanbred horse won the classic mile and a half, upon the outcome of which hinges the distribution of millions of dollars in the Irish weepstakes.

Three other American owners ave seen their colors borne home in front but they were carried by foreign-bred horses. These were W. C. By THAD HOLT.

Ben Brown, streamlined young Atlanta middleweight, flicking a left hand that was both deceptive and punishing, last night breezed to a 10-round decision over Ray Lyle, absorbing and tireless Akron, Ohio, battler, at the ball park.

Making his first start before the home folks, who were there in great numbers, Brown lived up to ill expectations, proving himself a fine young boxer and a sharp, if not destructive, hitter in winning nine out of ten rounds. Lyle, boring in all the way in the face of fire that would have made a less game foe seek the trenches, managed, by a short-lived rally in the third, to square that round.

Employing a bobbing, ducking style made famous by that great bantamweight of another day,

Difficult Task Ably Carried Out In Federal Theater Presentation

By RALPH T. JONES.

The Atlanta Federal theater undertook last night one of the most difficult tasks the stage offers. They took a play with a theme and handling that depends almost entirely on an ethereal sort of study of humanity and created a really interesting, likeable evening of entertainment.

It was the first production, anywhere, of "One More Spring," created from the novel by Robert Nathan, who was in the audience, having come from New York for the world premiere, explained a natural nervousness by revealing it was the first time any brain child of his had reached the living stage. The same story, of course, has been made into a screen play.

The story is familiar. It deals with a bankrupt dealer in antiques a would-be contert violinist and a street walker, all penniless and homeless, who make a home out of a toolshed in Central Park, New York. The time, of course, was that winter when the depression reached its uttermost depths, when breadlines stretched for miles and when banks were

. . . Meanwhile, Tarzan, well ahead of his party, suddenly became conscious of a sound that disturbed the monotony of the forest. His every faculty was attuned to that faint note of discord, and he moved silently through the trees toward its sound.

Presently he saw the dim figure of a man walking rapidly through the jungle, almost at a trot; he was breathing heavily, as one who had been running. This was a Kavuru, and the ape-man resolved to capture and question him, hoping to gain valuable information.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarsan paused above him, then dropped down upon his victim. Both fell. The Kavuru lay still. Tarsan bent over him to determine if he had been killed by the fall, but the man was pretending. Suddenly his hand flew to his belt, and whipped out his knife!

"'We would have to land to do that,' replied Bassein. "Schmidt looked out of the window and meditated. Where can we land?" asked Schmidt.

"Clouds closed out everything.

"Let's try to get as near to the pole as we can,' said Schmidt.
"'We will go on,' I said. 'When we get clear of the clouds we can select a smooth field and land. Say nothing to the others on board yet. There is no use in worrying them.

With Secret Agreements With New York Central and Erie Railroads Favoring Oil Shipments, He Induces Rival Refiners To Join in Monopoly.

(This is the seventh in a series

Copyright 1937, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) John D.'s eyes did not grow noticeably salty over the untimely demise of the South Improvement scheme. However, he and his invaluable viceroy, Flagler, were thoroughly in favor of its princi-pal features—the rebate and the

Quietly and, of course, secretly they obtained another rebate from the New York Central system. It may have been merely a coincidence that simultaneously President William H. Vanderbilt, of the Central (Son Billy), received a block of stock in the Standard Oil Company, Son Billy, it but putty in the hands of Rocke-feller and Flagler. However, the Standard Oil men had no intention of putting all their railroad eggs in one basket. John D. moved toward an alliand with that fascinating little pirate, Jay Gould, who was flicking about with the Erie railroad as does a girl with her latest favorite. The Erie, eager to build up its oil traffic, asked Rockefeller to ship some of his petroleum through the Erie depot at Weehawken. John D. agreed, provid-ing he could obtain as juicy a concession from the Erie as he a ready enjoyed from the Central. Secrecy Surrounds Moves. A contract was signed, under date of April 17, 1874, by which the Weehawken yards passed into control of the Standard in return for the latter's pledge to ship 50 per cent of the products of its western refineries over the Erie. The agreement gave Rockefeller With preferential treatment thus ssured, Rockefeller and Flagler now determined upon a bold, monopolistic move. They decided to take in the men they could use, liminate the rest. At Saratoga Springs in August, 1874, Rockefeller and Flagler met, as though by chance, W. G. Warden, of the Atlantic Refining Company, Philadelphia, and Charles Lockhart, strongest of the Pittsburgh refiners. "Now," suggested John D. soft-ly, "why do not you gentlemen attempt in your cities what we have accomplished in Cleveland? Combination, gentlemen, combination."

John D. went on to propose formation of a secret alliance to be called the Central Association. This association would take over the plants of Warden, Lockhart and others to be selected and would operate jointly. So far as the public or the oil trade was to know, for the time being, all the members of the new alliance were still active competitors.
